Pair Early 19th Century Swedish Baroque Stone Top Demilune Console Tables

Pair of early 19th century Swedish Baroque demilune console tables. Each table features a Baroque-style base with a three-leg configuration and a curved skirt decorated with simple carved panels.

The bases are finished in a newer layered black painted finish that has been lightly distressed, revealing natural wood beneath and complementing the age and character of the tables.

Each table is topped with a stone surface showing rich matrix and variation, with tones of gray and green emerging through a dominant russet coloration. The contrast between the dark base and stone top adds visual depth.

The tables have been restored and are strong, stable, and ready to use. Minor age-related cracks, scratches, and nicks are present and consistent with use.

This is a matched pair and a distinctive find, particularly due to the character and coloration of the stone tops.

Please refer to professional photos for clear understanding of color, condition, and details; photo lighting, individual monitor display and home lighting all impact how item is viewed.
