19th Century Large Danish Pine Armoire with Two Bowfront Doors

19th century Danish country armoire crafted in pine. The cabinet features two bowfront doors flanked by turned columns. This large armoire is considered "country Biedermeier" style.

A simple crown is accented with two round finials. The lower section includes two drawers fitted with brass pulls.

The armoire has been restored and is strong, stable, and ready to use. A wax finish enhances the warmth of the natural pine.

Age-related separation is visible along the back, interior bottom, and drawer bottoms. Minor cracks, gouges, and nicks are present throughout but do not impact the structure or function. Minor wormhole activity is visible along the back of the crown. The cabinet was originally built to break down, with interior peg wedges still visible from this construction method.
