19th Century Danish Oak Blue Painted Secretary Bureau

This oak rococo secretary reflects the grace and class of European styling in the early 1800's. The dramatic serpentine drawers with curvaceous front add a romantic touch, all resting on attractive carved skirt and feet. The traditional interior with 8 unique, small drawers and central "cubbie" with small hidden storage underneath (see photos) offers perfect space to organize. It was later professionally painted with an exceptional blue painted exterior complimented by a soft dove gray interior, updating the look while adding to the classic Scandinavian styling. Fully restored, all drawers function, desktop is solid and ready to be used and enjoyed. A single key is included to open the desktop; an interior key is used as pull only for small cubbie. Please enlarge photos to appreciate the incredible painted finish distressed perfectly to fit the age of this attractive secretary.

All age-related cracks, distress, age related separation and signs of wear are commensurate with age and do not impact the beauty nor function of this striking secretary or "bureau."
