Original Hand-Painted Hungarian Pine Folk Art Storage Bench circa 1890-1920

Hungarian storage bench, crafted in pine with its original hand-painted folk art finish. Dark brown faux wood painting dominates the surface, a decorative treatment typical of European folk art furniture from the period. A simple floral motif decorates the front, with a central name painted in aged white. Faint floral decoration is also visible along the inner sides and back, though the dark brown painted surface remains the primary visual element.

Generations of use have worn the painted finish down to the natural pine in areas that received the most contact, particularly along the upper arms and front edge of the bench seat. Cracks, nicks, scratches, gouges, and additional distress are visible throughout, with heavier wear along the feet and edges. Residual signs of old dried wormhole activity are also present but are no longer active.

The bench seat opens to reveal divided interior storage. Age related separation is visible between the planks forming the interior bottom.

Restored, stable, and ready to use. Seat Height: 18.75"
