1841 Hungarian Original Hand-Painted One-Door Armoire with Floral Decoration

19th century Hungarian one-door armoire dated 1841, crafted in pine and retaining its original hand-painted folk-art finish. A traditional faux wood painted background provides a warm setting for colorful floral decoration in shades of red, teal blue, green, black, and additional tones.

Two square panels on the front door feature hand-painted floral bouquets arranged in vases, while additional painted panels continue along the sides. The simple upper crown displays the date 1841, adding a personal historical detail to this charming example of Eastern European country craftsmanship.

The single door opens to reveal a clean, open interior. Although the cabinet likely contained shelves at an earlier point in its history, none are currently installed, allowing the next owner to configure the space according to individual storage needs. The original lock is no longer functional, and the door is secured by a simple metal latch at the upper left corner.

Age related wear is visible throughout, including scratches, nicks, and distress to the original painted surface. Areas of paint loss reveal the natural pine beneath. An old repair is visible near the lower hinge, while vertical separation between planks is present along the back. Additional stains, markings, scratches, and residual evidence of old dried wormhole activity can also be seen. The wormhole activity is no longer active and does not impact function.

Restored, stable, waxed, and ready to use. A delightful Hungarian folk-art armoire with its original painted decoration, dated crown, and versatile open storage interior.
