Late 19th Century Swedish Original Hand-Painted Trunk on Stand Side Table

Late 19th century Swedish pine trunk raised on a decorative trestle base, retaining its original hand-painted finish and charming country character. The compact flat-top trunk features carved panels embellished with painted details in shades of brick red, taupe, dark green and black against a traditional faux wood background. Much of the original paint has worn away over generations, revealing the natural pine beneath.

The trunk rests on a cross-trestle base with bun feet, giving it the proportions and functionality of a small side table. The old lock remains functional, allowing the hinged top to open and reveal a removable divided tray for organizing smaller belongings. Inside the lid, a delightful stenciled horse motif appears in burnt orange against a cream-colored background.

Signs of age and use include small cracks, nicks, gouges, and considerable distress to the painted finish, including across the top. These details reflect the history of the piece and contribute to its distinctive appearance. Restored, stable, and ready to use as a side table with concealed storage. A wonderful example of Swedish country craftsmanship, combining original painted decoration, carved details, and a practical raised trunk design.
